he first and third Fridays. Explains Policy of Co-Operation. President McGrath, in a statement to the committee last night, outlined the policy of co-operation with the food administration, which he urged should be followed by the organiza-tion in all its work. Mr. McGrath's statement was unafilmously adopted as the policy of the council and copies of it will be distributed to the members of the various food commit-TRANSPORT ENDS VOYAGE members of the various food committees.

"Our single purpose," said Mr. MeGrath, "is to co-operate with the food administration in carrying out the government's food program during the war. I am convinced that our organization will be useful in so far only as We adhere strictly to this object.
To depart from it for a moment would, in my opinion, amount to committing an unpatriotic act. We are, and must consider ourselves, a part of the administration. We must have no policies that are not its policies. While this organization is the result of a voluntary citizens movement, its recognition by the District food administrator makes it in effect a quasigovernment institution. We have been given responsibilities that we cannot now escape. Our opportunity for not now escape. Our opportunity for doing effective war work cannot be overestimated.

"It will be our privilege to advise in the shaping of the food administration's work—not to formulate its program. We may offer suggestions, but in the shaping of the foed administration's work—not to formulate its program. We may offer suggestions, but it will be our duty to aid conscientiously in the carrying out of all policies devised, regardless of whether they coincide with our personal views. In short, our position is similar to that of the soldier in the field. When orders are issued it will become our duty to execute them, and I have no doubt that this organization will take up its work with the same spirit of loyalty and obedience to higher command that is carrying our boys over the top in "But we should not lose sight of the fact that before policies are formed by the feod administration we may, by intelligent investigation and study of the local situation, play a considerable part in determining what those policies shall be. We are asked to be the eyes and ears of the food administration; to police the city against profiteering; to carry on an intensive campaign in the homes for conservation of food. Obviously, we cannot do these things without forming opinions. And the food administration wants our opinions.

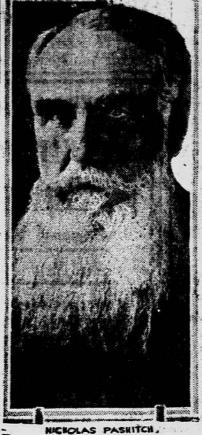

"The main thing te keep in mind is the differences of opinion should it that differences of opinion should in the differences of opinion should be the differences of opinion should in the differences of opinion should be the differences of opinion should be determined to the determined to
